The High Cost of Goodies'

AT THE HEIGHT OF THE FED-A eral election campaign and perhaps as a prelude to a provin-cial election next year, Mr. Bennett promises more of his "goodies" to the homeowner.

He is, he says, going to double the home-owners' grant from $50 to $100 next spring. Some of the people, but not all of them, will receive back a little more of their own money—and, as usual, with no advantage to the municipalities whose purse Mr. Bennett proposes to cut.

No one should be misled by this return to the taxpayers of their own money even though the premier says the increased grant will come from provincial resources, not from taxes. In actual fact revenues from resources and from taxpayers go to pay the costs of running British Columbia. If home-owner grants are taken from the earnings on resources, automatically a larger share of the costs of running the province will have to come from the taxpayer. That is arithmetic in its simplest form.

But doubling the home-owners grant will not provide more money for the municipalities. They derive no direct benefit. The "goodies" here go to the individual—the voter, though not every voter. The municipalities will continue to scratch for what they need—and scratch harder as the result of a complementary announcement made by Mr. Bennett.

At the time of his "goodies" promise, he also said he would give grants in lieu of taxes.

Hes for provincial government propis to replace the per capita grant scheme by which the provincial government currently helps to finance the municipalities.

In Victoria, one of the lucky municipalities because of provincial government buildings here, the

On the basis of informed estimates, Victoria would have to raise its current tax rate by between two and three mills to offset the loss in government per capita grants.

It is true, of course, that Victoria has asked for payment by the province of grants in lieu of taxes on government property. But that request was predicated on the logical assumption that such grants would supplement, not replace, the per capita payments. The city was entitled to that belief because the grants on a per capita basis were admittedly compensation to municipalities for the revenues they lost when the province repossessed all the sales tax — jumped from its

If they act in this conservative way, there will be no inflation, and therefore there will be no rational reason for a run on our gold reserves. Having said that, it must also be said that the gold problem is not an American problem alone. It is Europe's problem no less.

The problem has been created since 1950, that is to say, since the United States adopted the Marshall Plan for European recovery and the Truman It took them sixteen days to build Doctrine for the containment of Communism. A Permanent Voters' List

An Eye to the Future

VICTORIA'S RETURNING OFficer, Mr. Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre, has pointed out another advantage in a "permanent" voters list kept continually up-to-date.

Had such a list been in use during the federal general election, several people denied votes would have received them, he says. The individuals concerned, he explains, were missed by enumerators and failed to check the preliminary lists within the time allowed for corrections. Hence, when they arrived at the polls they were not registered and could not vote.

If a permanent list had been maintained, they would automatically have had the right to mark

"No lady," the guards would say, "your rain hasn't come in yet. Yes lady, it comes in on this track in about 12 minutes. No lady, they never keave ahead of time. Yes lady, you'll see it if you sit on that bench over there." And we'd slink off.

I quit muttering about this a long time

gage we were carrying.

Then it would begin. The feminine half of the older generation would say to the masculine, "Have you got the tickets?"

The reply never varied: "I'll-look again." And masculine hands would go through inside breast pockets, flap side pockets, undo vest buttons and feel in shirt pockets. "No. I gave them to you, remember?"

Then the search would start in the lady's bag and eventually she'd lift the envelope containing the tickets triumphantly. Here they are.

On my first long trip away from home, I was warned about pickpockets and equipped to fool them. Mother made me a nice linen belt that fastened with two and had a pocket sewn in front for travel lers' cheques and reserve funds. It was to be worn next to the skin and the pocket hung down like a concealed and slightly off-centre sporran. On hot days, my money ortainly stuck to me.

Still, it was pickpocket-proof, though it had certain disadvantages. Once, in a San Francisco nightspot my chit ran higher than the cash in my trousers' pocket. A young man feels something less than a boulevardier when he has to excuse him-self from his party, go to the gentlemen's washroom and undress in order to get at his travellers' cheques.

These various experiences aren't easily shaken. We still get in a tizzy even when our grown-up children are embarking on their frequent trips. We do the worrying. They pretend to take things in stride. They're the inward-worrying type and try not to show it.

So when the young man decided to visit Spokane he was blase enough about his arrangements. But there were a couple of things we could do, if we would. He doesn't hear alarm clocks in the morning. Would I wake him at 5 a.m. and would some run him down to the six o'clock ferry?
This we did, but on Thursday there's no 6 a.m. ferry to Port Angeles. It leaves at 10 instead.

Which proves the point we've been try-ing to make to the next generation. When-travelling, give yourself plenty of time to catch your boat. He did. Four hours. And who are we to worry about a little lost

MONTE ROBERTS

I have been wrong before, and I will be wrong again. There is a showcard in the window of the tourist information office on the causeway, inviting one and all to visit the B.C. Maritime Museum.

A most commendable suggestion, as there is much of interest and historical significance to be seen at this establishment, well worth the few minutes it takes to bus or drive out Esquimalt Road to Signal Hill.

The showcard in question, though, leaves me scratching my grizzled head and pulling reflectively at my ear lobe. On the showcard is a photograph of one of the displays,

HMS BEAVER.

As far as I know (and here is where I'd like you to correct me if I am wrong), there were two ships named "Beaver" on this coast,

The first belonged to the Pacific Fur Company, the second was the famed Hudson's Bay Company steamer which breathed her last in Vancouver harbor's First

But "HMS-could it be the reliable Maritime Museum people have goofed?

Whilst we're on this historical jazz, here's something else on which I may be wrong-in fact, I have a strong suspicion I am.

Since I was a young sprout, many, many, MANY years ago, I have had a theory about why Maitland Street, in Victoria West, was so named.

My maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George

Monteith, lived on that street during their long residence

They came to B.C. from Maitland, Nova Scotia, and I had always assumed, or perhaps I may have been told, that Maitland Street is named after Maitland, N.S. Now I notice in the front page feature "This day in Victoria, 1862," that HMS Bacchante, flagship of the Pacific fleet, arrived here on June 20 100 years ago — flying the flag of Rear Admiral Sir Thomas Mattland.

I do hope somebody can tell me whether my new theory

Mrs. Violet Hawkes, supervisor for the voluntary committee, said the group is not bankrupt or collapsed, just temporarily out of business.

White Collar Jobs Needed

DUNCAN—A strong plea for the placement of Indians in white collar jobs in Duncan, and the formation of a co-operative to develop Indian-owned farm land in the area, was made by Bev Savory, probation officer, when he spoke to Duncan Kiwanis Club this week.

Mr. Savory said no group of people caused the probation service more concern than the native Indian. 1960-61 of the total prison population of 13,399, some 2,459 were Indian.

2,459 were Indian.

This meant that less than 1 per cent of the white population was incarcerated but-6 per cent of the Indians. Mr. Savory posed the question: What is the matter? He stated, "Many things are. The Indian Act is in need of revision. The Indians' social assistance rate must be brought up to a par with the white.

"The liquor part of the act, being drunk off the reserve, is a most insidious thing. As any of the older police will tell you, the fines from this act have built more police stations in this province than those from more police stations in this province than those from any other source."

Mr. Savory said the cure is a job which must have full co-operation and assistance of the community in-wolved.

"When one looks at the local situation it is appalling to note that of the 1,100 Indian people resident on the local reserves, no more than three are employed at white collar jobs in the city of Duncan.

"When one considers the amount of money spent by the local Indians in Duncan every month, one realizes that something is dreadfully wrong. People love to criticize but when it comes to doing something-concrete in a situation where help is so badly needed the job is often dropped like a hot polato. is often dropped like a hot potato.

"Here is a most tragic situation on your doorstep and I am sure you, as a group, could provide the positive assistance and leadership needed. These Indians need help in home-making, garden cultivation, and the use of local farm land. The waste of good farm land on the reserves is terrific. Couldn't a co-operative be set up? In the field of crafts could we not seen that the Indian is properly paid for what he does?

"The greatest need is in job placement, both in placement and preparation and continuing help, and advice until the Indian person involved gets properly acclimatized to the new job. It will take people with a lot of faith in humanity to do such a job."

Mr. Schorny anded his fall with a block "I see out to be a possible or the property of the prope

Mr. Savory ended his talk with a kick: "I get quite hot under the collar on this subject when I see the tremendous lack of consideration the Christian white has for his native brethren."

These informants said the suggestion probably will be included in an American answer expected soon to a recent Soviet note which charged the West with provocations and endangering the peace.

MONTE ROBERTS

I have been wrong before, and I will be wrong again,

There is a showcard in the window of the tourist Information office on the causeway, inviting one and all to visit the B.C. Maritime Museum.

A most commendable suggestion, as there is much of Interest and historical significance to be seen at this estabtishment, well worth the few minutes it takes to bus or drive out Esquimalt Road to Signal Hiff.

The showcard in question, though, leaves me scratching my grizzled head and pulling reflectively at my ear lobe. On the showcard is a photograph of one of the displays, and this display refers to

HMS BEAVER.

As far as I know (and here is where I'd like you to correct me if I am wrong), there were two ships named on this coast.

The first belonged to the Pacific Fur Company, the second was the famed Hudson's Bay Company steamer which breathed her last in Vancouver harbor's First Narrows.

But "HMS—could it be the reliable Maritime Museum people have goofed?

Whilst we're on this historical jazz, here's something else on which I may be wrong-in fact, I have a strong suspicion I am.
Since I was a young sprout, many, many, MANY years ago, I have had a theory about why Maitland Street, in Victoria West, was so named. My maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Monteith, lived on that street during their long residence

They came to B.C. from Maitland, Nova Scotia, and I had always assumed, or perhaps I may have been told, that Maitland Street is named after Maitland, N.S. Now I notice in the front page feature "This day in Victoria, 1862," that HMS Bacchante, flagship of the Pacific fleet, arrived here on June 20 100 years ago — flying the flag of Rear Admiral Sir Thomas Maitland.

I do hope somebody can tell me whether my new theory of Maitland Street's naming is right or wrong.

I can only hope against hope Maitland wasn't named after Sir Thomas - after all, it's a very small street, and

50 Holes Bored In Roof

A brace and bit allowed a thief to carry out a silent robbery of a safe at Crystal Spring Beverage Company early today.

At least $1,000 in eash and cheques is missing.

The burglary was discovered at 8 a.m. when plant superintendent Ronald McDowell arrived at work.

Along with money, the thief took invoice records detailing the exact sum of money in the safe, said manager E. W. Brinkworth.

50 HOLES

"He cut about 50 holes in the roof with a brace and bit," said Mr. Brinkworth.

"The neighbors didn't hear a thing.

"When he got inside he used crowbar to pry open the depository chute just enough to get his arm in the safe."

Police believed the burglar was a professional due to his studious avoidance of a burglar alarm secreted below a rubber mat in front of the safe.

Two sledgehammers, along with the crowbar and brace and bit were found at the scene. Police say it is likely these were stolen elsewhere prior to the robbery.

The statement broke the silence he has maintained since his government was returned to power, in a weakened minority position, in the general election Monday.

It was extraordinary in that It was the first recognition by the government that economic difficulties did, in fact, exist although the opposition par-ties continually raised the question throughout the eight-week election campaign.

JFK, As Angel, Graces Vatican

WASHINGTON (AP) - A sculptured likeness of President Kennedy as a winged angel—for which he posed 23 years ago-is part of an altar panel in the Vatican, the Washington Post related to-

The Post, in a story quoting Washington sculptress Irena Wiley, said Kennedy, a Roman Catholie, posed for the figure in a wood sculptured panel in an altar which Mrs. Wiley carved and gave to the Vatican.

He was the "most charming and patient model," re-ealls Mrs. Wiley, wife of foreign service officer John Cooper Wiley.

The incident is contained in a book Mrs. Wiley has written — Around The Globe In Twenty Years—which will be published in August.

According to Mrs. Wiley it happened in 1939—just before the Second World War broke out - when Mrs. Wiley's husband was serving as a diplo-mat in Latvia and Estonia and President Kennedy's fa-ther was the ambassador to Britain.
